KA YOU MERGES WITH LINKUP COMMUNICATIONS TO DELIVER STATE-OF-THE-ART AUDIO/VIDEO TRANSMISSION SOLUTIONS

PANAMA CITY, Fla. – Broadcast technology firm Ka You Communications and its sister company Ka You Systems have merged with LinkUp Communications Corporation in Panama City, Fla., to provide complete access to 24/7 customer service and state-of-the-art transmission solutions.

Ka You is owned by broadcast industry veteran Karen Johnson. Ka You's former director of technology, Mark Johnson, is the founder of LinkUp Communications.

"Mark has been a well-known leader in the broadcast transmission industry for over three decades," noted Karen Johnson. "By merging with LinkUp, Ka You customers benefit by receiving around-the-clock troubleshooting assistance, plus the best technology know-how in the business."

LinkUp will provide Ka You customers with design and installation services, giving them the distinct advantage of an experienced in-house technology staff with knowledge of the latest satellite equipment.

"The merger brings together the best of our companies to help broadcasters, churches, nonprofits and businesses with content delivery," Johnson said. "Our knowledge and skills complement each other. LinkUp offers the most innovative equipment and technology, and has a positive working relationship with major industry manufacturers. Ka You is known for its quality service and tailored solutions. Together, we're an unbeatable team for our customers."

Ka You Systems/Ka You Communications has been an industry leader in satellite integration for over 15 years, providing clients with cost-effective satellite solutions tailored to their specific business needs. The company provides Ku and C-Band space segment, equipment and installation for radio, television and video projects on multiple satellites.

LinkUp Communications Corporation, founded in 2016, specializes in the design and installation of satellite uplink and downlink networks. LinkUp offers an array of services, including FCC licensing, design, integration, installation, space segment and ongoing support.

Karen R. Johnson is a respected broadcast professional and entrepreneur. As a founder of Ka You Systems and Ka You Communications, she spent two decades championing the power of satellite to deliver broadcast-quality radio and video that is live and immediate.

Mark Johnson has been a leader in the broadcast transmission industry for over 30 years. As the founder of LinkUp Communications, Johnson adheres to four core values: put people first, pursue excellence, embrace change and act with integrity.
